Mississippi Freedom Party Head Presents Views at YD Meeting

By LYLA WEINTRAUB

Aaron Henry, one of the two delegates at large from Mississippi seated at the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City and head of the Mississippi Freedom Party, addressed an overflow crowd in the Quad Tuesday.

He stressed the importance of getting out the vote for President Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert Humphrey, appealed for a "No" vote on Proposition 14, and related the Mississippi story. Henry was sponsored by the JFK and Valley College Young Democrats at their meeting.

Delegate-at-Large

Henry, a druggist from Clarksville, Miss., was one of the 64 delegates at large demanding to be heard during the Democratic convention who were seated officially. The other one was Rev. Edward King.

Jesting, he explained his delay by saying, "I'm from Mississippi and we don't know no better there." He arrived late because his car caught fire.

On Proposition 14, he said "no other state, not even Mississippi, has a constitutional amendment that will legally allow segregation. If proposition 14 passes, California will have such an amendment and would turn back the clock on civil rights."

No on 14

He explained that California has always been a true section of freedom and was amazed that Proposition 14 could go either way. Covering the proposition with niceties, he continued, cannot hide the fact that it is against all human rights. He therefore advocated a loud "NO" on Proposition 14 and a loud "Yes" for Johnson and Humphrey and civil rights.

"Mississippi will have to solve many issues before becoming a real component of the nation," he said. "Human rights are ignored by the state, county and city and only through relief of a friendly Federal Administration can the Negro gain any semblance of equality." Filing a suit by a Negro invites lashing.

Economically, he stated that the "Poverty" bill has already been implemented in Mississippi because of the extreme poverty existing in the state. "Thirty-two per cent of the population have an income of less than $3,000, 22 per cent less than $2,000 and 51 per cent less than $1,000 a year. Only by abolishing poverty and encouraging industry on an equal basis can the economy rise."

States Rights

"Barry Goldwater advocates States Rights," he said. "What chance do I have under States Rights? Under the Civil Rights bill, they will not love me, but it will prevent them from hanging me."

According to Henry, Mississippi has an infinitive for the bottom and rates 5th in the United States. He feels other state can ever be great, if we have a state like Mississippi.

African Freedom

He told of how the United Nations is growing with the freedom gained by many African countries. The United Nations representation will have its effect on the United States.

"Methods and techniques are needed for all, not only to walk down the same road, but to walk down that road together," he said. "Conservative philosophy must be buried and liberal philosophy must be stressed."

Henry also introduced a "new idiom" in political jargon, "There is the back-lash, the front-lash and now we are introducing a third dimension, the side-lash. This is to make sure that we prevail, side by side with all."

Salinger and Bane

In the State of California, he appealed for a vote for both Pierre Salinger for the Senate and Tom Bane for Assemblyman. He stressed that the liberal party must gain strength in California and that many forces, under the cloak of respectability, were undermining the freedom of minorities.

During the question and answer period, many students asked how they could be of assistance. His answer was that they must get out the Democratic vote and work for a Democratic landslide.

Richard Beymer, co-star of West Side Story, was also scheduled to speak. Beymer did not appear due to business commitments in New York.

SPEAKING OUT—Aaron Henry, chairman of the Mississippi freedom delegation, is seen speaking out for the retaining of the Rumford Fair Housing Act in last Tuesday's quad speech sponsored by the J.F.K. Young Democrats and the Valley College Young Democrats. Henry made his plea for a "No on 14" vote to a crowd estimated in excess of 400 persons.

ACLU Head Urges A 'No on 14' Vote In Quad Speech

"Preserve the Rumford Act" will be the topic of the Quad-wrangler event today as Dr. Eason Monroe, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, speaks at 11 a.m. in the Quad.

The Rumford Act is the controversial ruling regarding discrimination practices in housing. Proposition 14 appearing on the Nov. 3 ballot seeks to nullify the Rumford Act and prevent further civil rights legislation with regard to housing.

Yes on Rumford

Eason, a graduate of San Jose State College and Stanford University, will be presenting the case for a "no on 14" vote. As executive director of the ACLU, Dr. Eason is traveling throughout the state speaking out for the Rumford Fair Housing Act.

Proposition 14, which will outlaw the Rumford Act, is on the ballot as follows: "Prohibits State, subdivision or agency thereof from denying, limiting or abridging rights of any person to decline, to sell, lease or rent residential real property to any person he chooses. Prohibition not applicable to property owned by State, or its subdivisions; property acquired by eminent domain; or transient lodging accommodations, by hotels, motels and similar places."

Discrimination in Selling

The Rumford Act makes it illegal for a home owner to refuse to sell his home to a qualified buyer on the basis of race or nationality if the home was financed with public funds. Apartment rental is also covered.

In addition to the Rumford Act, Proposition 14 also nullifies the Hawkins and Unruh Acts.

Council Sets Recall Voting

An election to recall Christopher Royce, commissioner of scholastic activities, will be held tomorrow in the Quad, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., according to A.S. President Brent Carruth.

The election is open to all Valley students with a student body card, and is being held to complete recall proceedings as outlined in the A.S. Constitution. A three-fourths vote of the Executive Council in favor of the recall was needed to initiate the procedure. In order to effect Royce's removal from the council a majority of votes cast in the election is needed.

Royce was recalled by the council on the grounds "that he has impeding the progress of the Associated Student Organization in that he is unable to work successfully in group situations, and that he is not able to abide by the decisions made in said groups."

The poll will be manned by Dennis Catalano, Inter-Organization Council representative.

Modern Minstral Performs

By STAN TAYLOR, News Editor

Karl Wolfram is living proof of a sad fact concerning creative talents. The people that most concern an artist, the people for whom he performs, rarely accept him. If they do, it is usually as second or third choice.

Wolfram, who will open the fall Athenaeum Series with a concert Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre, has won wide-spread critical acclaim on three continents. But in Germany the twist and the blues are much more popular than Wolfram's century-spanning German folk songs.

Third Season of Tours

Beginning his third season of touring American colleges and universities, Wolfram has scheduled appearances on some 50 different campuses.

Wolfram's repertoire includes more than 400 songs, spanning nearly seven centuries. Besides singing the songs, Wolfram introduces them in English and accompanies himself on several rare, medieval instruments. The instruments are a story in themselves.

Offers of thousands of dollars have been made for the various instruments he plays, but Wolfram has turned them all down. Among these instruments are a therobo, an alto lute and a vielle.

Ancient Instruments

One of his lutes is made entirely of ivory and was made in 1551. Another is even more ancient, being made in the 15th century. Wolfram even has a lute that sounds like bagpipes. This is accomplished by several wooden wheels that move along strings.

In many cases, Wolfram has had to search extensively to find these instruments, and has had to do much repair work, once he found them.

Among the 400 songs, Wolfram includes epoch ballads, ancient love songs, songs of the Landsknechte (mercenary soldier) and a selection

Valley Instructor Larabee Wins Olympic Gold Medal

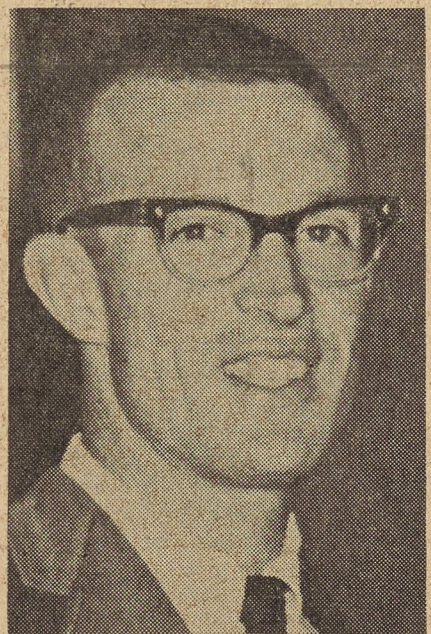

Athletic immortality has been won by a Valley College night instructor by virtue of his Olympic victory in the 400-meter dash. Mike Larabee, who at age 30 is the oldest American ever to compete in an Olympic sprint race, startled the track experts with his victory.

The graduate of USC serves as a day instructor at Monroe High School in addition to his night teaching duties at Valley. He has been teaching a night geology class on this campus since 1959.

Larabee's victory in Tokyo, which was viewed by his wife Margaret, was doubly sweet as the road to fame for the dedicated athlete was anything but smooth.

In 1960, he was on the threshold of Olympic greatness when he was struck down by a severe tendon tear. Again in 1962 he was on the verge of fame, only to be sidelined for a year with a foot injury.

Never one to let adversity get the better of him, the gifted athlete launched a comeback in 1963. At that time he was teaching at Grant High School, and made it a point to come to Valley for afternoon workouts.

Robinson Jeffers' free adaptation of Greek tragedy "Medea" is slated to open Valley's theater arts department. It will star theater arts students Mickey Halladay as Medea, John Nichols as her husband Jason and Ed Berkoben as Creon.

The Greek tragedy by Euripides is the third Greek play to be presented by Valley's theater arts department. It will star theater arts students Mickey Halladay as Medea, John Nichols as her husband Jason and Ed Berkoben as Creon.

Town Hall Forum Begins Tuesday

Town Hall Forum, last semester's weekly program of outdoor debates, returns for a second semester, again under the sponsorship of the Freshman Class.

The first event features Robert Rivera, associate professor of theater arts and speech, and Dr. Arnold Fletcher, associate professor of history, debating the pros and cons of "Fraternalism on Campus."

It all takes place next Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the Quad.

United Crusade Dedicated to Help

By JACKIE HANSEN
Feature Editor

Valley College students on the whole are a normal, healthy group of young people. They are managing to keep up with their studies although at times this requires work and effort. Some of them, of course, drop out of classes or college altogether, but the majority go on to finish their education. These are the fortunate ones.

What happens when a young person finds himself in trouble? Because of emotional, physical or social conditions, many young people need the help of professional counselors. The United Crusade helps just such people. Through its 310 agencies, people of all ages are being helped.

According to Dr. Lawrence Snipper, coordinator of the fund raising campaign on campus, the American Red Cross has joined the United Way to form the United Crusade. Because a single campaign is less expensive to operate and maintain, costs will not exceed 10.5 per cent of the goal. The United Way will receive 79 per cent, and Red Cross will have the remaining 21 per cent.

One of the recipients of funds from the United Crusade is the Catholic Youth Authority. This organization works closely with young people in and out of trouble. They offer recreational facilities to provide supervised leisure time activities. Sometimes they must counsel with a teenager and his family to bring about better social attitudes.

One such case history concerned a young man identified only as George. He had been injured in a fight with party crashers. Vengeance is an obligation in some areas of our city. George's friends thought they had identified the culprit and it was up to George to settle the score. The CYA worker and George's parents were eager to help. They did not want him to seek retribution and perhaps injure an innocent person.

The CYA man talked to police and convinced them of the urgency of finding the guilty person. The culprit was found and convicted before George left the hospital. He was not the boy identified by George's friends.

This is just one case out of the countless number handled by agencies of the United Crusade.

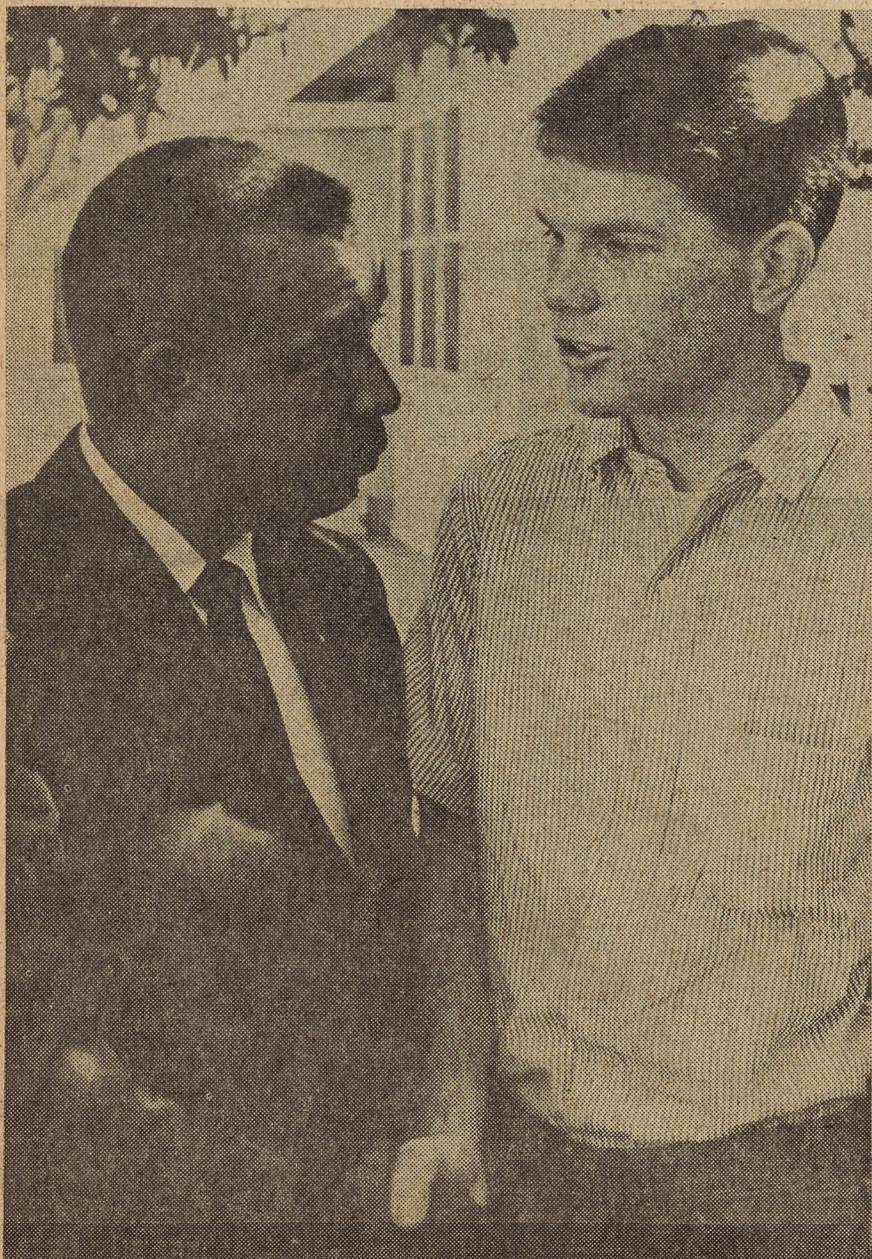

The campus campaign will begin early next month. Speech class students will visit classrooms and stress the desirability of contributing to this one campaign.

paign. From left to right they are Carol Strand, Arlene Tiano and Koren Hagle. The United Crusade is a new organization combining the United Way and the Red Cross for more efficient charity campaigning.

President Hoover Led Life of Service

Herbert Clark Hoover, 31st President of the United States, is dead at the age of 90. After a lengthy battle with the infirmities of age, the former President succumbed at his New York apartment.

His career of public service spanned more than 60 years. Five Presidents employed his skills in various capacities. While in London working for the San Francisco Panama-Pacific Exposition at the beginning of World War I, he was asked to organize aid for stranded Americans. Through his efforts 12,000 Americans were able to reach the United States.

When the United States entered the war, President Wilson brought him home to serve as U.S. Food Administrator. At the completion of the war, the big four allies appointed him director of relief and rehabilitation to be personally responsible to them.

In 1919 friends wanted to nominate him for President. He was being considered by both political parties as their nominee until he announced he had always been a Republican. He lost the nomination that year, but was asked by President Harding to be a member of the cabinet as Secretary of Commerce, a position he retained in the Coolidge administration.

The election of 1928 found Mr. Hoover as the leading Republican candidate for President. He defeated his opponent, Al Smith, by a larger electoral vote than any President had yet achieved and carried all but eight states.

His administration is remembered by just one development—the great depression which followed the stock market crash of 1929. The man who was responsible for feeding hundreds of hungry people throughout the world now found himself with many hungry and unemployed in his own nation.

The country became disenchanted with the man who promised them "a chicken in every pot." When it was time for another election, they chose Franklin D. Roosevelt to lead them out of the depression.

Retiring in bitter disillusionment after his defeat, he was called back to public service by former President Truman to investigate methods to avert post-war famine. Mr. Truman also named him to head the commission which later carried his name, the Hoover Commission.

Serving as chairman until the commission's work was completed in 1955, Mr. Hoover announced this work would be his last public service. He saw several of the recommendations by the commission to institute economies in government enacted into law by Congress.

A life of dedication, determination and dignity cannot be summarized by words. The nation and the free world has lost a good and valuable friend.

Civil Rights Leader Justly Rewarded

The Rev. Martin Luther King, pioneer in the use of non-violent protest to gain Negro equality, has been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. Along with the Nobel gold medal, King will receive a sizeable $53,123 tax free dollars, which he will readily turn over to the civil rights movement.

The man who has been in the news with great regularity this past year is the 12th American and the 3rd Negro to be awarded the prize. Obviously, his effect upon the press is some indication of the following King has managed to attract. He is relatively pleased with the results thus far obtained, but his optimism is disquieting among those who demand immediate results.

To the man who patterned his campaign after Mahatma Gandhi, whose tactics of passive resistance helped free India from British rule, the progress made so far is most gratifying. His street marches and other non-violent forms of demonstration, while pacifying some, brought about great dissatisfaction among white segregationists and Negro extremists who felt his methods too soft.

Since it is impossible to please everybody, it must be looked upon as somewhat of a turning point in a long fought "battle," when a man like King is singled out for his deeds. It hasn't been an easy campaign, and the risks have been great. Twelve times King has been jailed and three times threats have been made on his life since he began his crusade nine years ago. In 1955-56 King led a 381-day boycott which brought an end to segregation on the busses of Montgomery, Alabama. He is quick to point out that the credit is not all his, and gratefully indicates that his followers played a tremendous part in the success that has been made.

An individual with a great deal of magnetism has struggled hard to further the cause of his people, but his efforts have not gone unrecognized. Perhaps this is just what is needed to spur others on in the field of civil rights, for there is always room for more great leaders.

Evening Division Wants the News!

"What's happening on campus?"

"Where can we go to relax?"

"Just what are we suppose to get for our $2.50 student body card?"

These are just a few of the many questions night students at Valley are asking.

This semester the approximate enrollment figures show 6,950 students attend night classes, 150 more than attend days. But how can these students be informed of campus events? They are the majority of Valley College yet the only means of information open to them is the 'Valley Star,' and 'Sceptre' the evening division magazine which spans one to two months.

Often the Star is not available on the stands at the beginning of the week. Day students also have the campus radio station KLA V to coincide with the 'Star,' why can't the evening division have KLA V also?

Between 8:15 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. nightly a majority of classes take a short break. Wouldn't this be the ideal time to broadcast five minutes of campus news?

To get support needed behind activities and to give the night student a feeling of being a part of the school, information must be brought to their attention. Such things as the Athenaeum, Occupational Exploration Series, clubs, art gallery and self-tutoring services are all open to the night students, but does he know it? Sports activities are another activity which often escapes the attention of the students.

Too many weeks have already passed this semester without the evening division student knowing of precedents. Something must be done to correct this situation.

Next semester, for the first time in Valley College history, the evening division will have a handbook of their own, informing them of opportunities offered on campus, but these will be long term events already on the master calendar.

With these problems now in the open we may see some changes made in the direction of giving Valley its strongest asset, the support of the student.

Campus Has Barren Spot—the Quad!

Usually an oasis is surrounded by a desert. But at Valley College we have the reverse situation.

In the center of this vast educational oasis is a splotch of barren desert known as the Quadrangle refreshment center.

Instead of cactus plants, there are vending machines. Still the place is as drought stricken as the Sahara in mid-July.

And the obvious question is, why?

Why is the Quad so nearly a disaster area that it may soon be eligible for Federal aid? Why do students turn from the Quad to such culinary refuges as the College Inn and Dawgie Dogs?

Why not? After all, when on a warm day the ice cream is as soft as putty and the Coca Cola becomes 90 per cent seltzer water, students must be expected to seek relief in another form.

And these are just two of the many minor irritations that plague patrons of the Quad. Finding change to operate the mechanical monsters is often an insurmountable obstacle. People have been known to have better luck with slot machines than with the automatic changers.

The Quad has a great potential. Other colleges have made far greater use of the vending machine system. In addition to solving the mechanical problems of no ice, stale pastry, and watery coffee, a greater selection of food should be offered. Canned soup would be a welcome addition. And the American institution, lemonade, should not be overlooked.

Surely Interstate Vending and the Valley College cafeteria, which collaborate in the operation of the Quad, could make the necessary improvements and additions.

Let's make the Quad satisfy the need it was meant to satisfy. And let's do it now.

It's Time for a Change; Lern to Spel Korekly!

By BILL SMITH
City Editor

In the last 100 years, man has done many wondrous things. He has learned to fly through the air, conquer diseases, take energy from the sea. But he still doesn't know how to spell.

Mankind, the English speaking variety at least, is faced with "The Great Spelling Dilemma." His use of the 26 letters of the alphabet is his greatest failure. He writes "laugh," when he says "laft." He writes "what," when he asks "wat?" He is in big trouble.

But it's not too late. If spelling is revamped now, there is still a chance. Let us begin.

Let us remove all inconsistencies from our spelling. We can't use "k" for keep and a "c" for clean and still hold our heads high. And "ph" looks nothing like "f."

FROM NOW ON we must receive only telephon kals, not telephone calls.

Where once it was once, it now must be wunce. Bekuz wunce upon a time looks better that way.

And wat about this business of using two letters wen one will do. Wen spelling bekums spelling, then wer geting sumware.

Of kors it wil tak tim for the majority of the peepul to lern the nu way of spelling. They'll hav to lern that wen we ty a knot, it's not knot but not.

If the ancient filosofers had thought ahead, then our language wud not be in the shambles it's now in.

Remember, Abraham Lincoln had the rit idea wen he sed, "For skor and seven yers ago, our forfathers brot forth a nu nashun konseved in liberte and dedicated to the proposishun that al wurdz should be speled simple."

JULIUS CAESAR had the rit idea

wen he sed, "2 b or not 2 b, that is the kweshun."

Lady Clairol had the rit idea wen she sed, "Onle her har dreser nowz for shur."

Nathan Hale had the rit idea wen he sed, "I regret that I hav onle wun lif to giv for mi kontre."

So with these grat thots in mind, go forth and convert, or konvert, or sumthin.

Machines, machines, machines! They seem to be taking over the world. Well almost anyway, and to prove it KNBC-TV channel 4 featured the Study Skills Center of Valley College on its news program last Monday night.

It seems Elmer Peterson, KNBC news commentator, had never heard of teaching machines, yet they have been in operation at Valley for over two years. The machines aid students in mastering difficult phases of a course in a voluntary, self-tutoring manner.

Peterson and Channel 4 found the Center to be a definite advantage for students having trouble, but never knew that automation went this far.

"WHEN I was a boy," recalls Peterson, "students had to hire a tutor or stay after class to get help. Now machines even do this."

Speed reading, grammar, spelling and mathematics are subjects taught by the machines, and more than 1,100 students have used the Center's facilities since its opening two years ago.

When asked by Peterson if the machines were as beneficial to students as personal help, Allan Keller, director of the center, said, "The center's facilities cannot duplicate personal instruction, they are merely supplemental."

Political Shakeups Hit Russia, Britain, China

By JACKIE HANSEN
Feature Editor

Few weeks in history can compare with the last one. It is difficult to say which story is most important or will have the most impact on the future. Certainly Russia's shakeup in leadership and Red China's entry into the nuclear weapons race will take top spots when newspaper editors pick the year's major news stories.

Not to be outdone, Britain's general election, which saw the return to power of the Labor Party after an absence of 13 years, will also rate high on the list.

Conjecture runs high as to the reason for Khrushchev's release as first secretary and premier of Russia. Following on the heels of the USSR's spectacular space feat, it focuses world-wide attention on the Iron Curtain.

OFFICIALLY CLAIMING to be relieved because of "advanced age and deteriorating health," no one really knows for sure just what prompted the party in this action. Pravda, the official newspaper of the Communist Party, lost no time in disgracing the former premier. He was charged with "hair-brained scheming, immature conclusions, and hasty decisions and actions, individualistic bragging and phrasemongering and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and experience." Quite an epitaph for someone who had faithfully served the Communist cause for most of his 71 years. One thing about Russian politics—when you are through, you are really through.

wide conference to ban the use of such weapons! Washington sources will have us believe that this newest member of the exclusive A-bomb club poses no threat to world peace as she has no means of transporting or delivering the war heads.

While the weapon may not be a physical threat to peace, it cannot be discounted in the mental cold war. It can be used to earn recognition of Red China as a nation in her own right, one that needs no help from outside forces. Whether this will encourage her to power her way into the UN remains to be seen. We can no longer play ostrich and hope the Chinese Communists will go away if only we don't recognize them.

HAROLD WILSON, new prime minister of Great Britain, won a narrow victory on the platform of deserting England's individual development of nuclear weapons and depending upon the United States for protection. It seems like only a few centuries ago that the Colonies depended upon the mother country for protection from the enemy. But now the pendulum swings in our "favor."

Outside influences, such as the happenings of this past week, have always had a profound effect upon our elections. Whether the voters will want to retain the administration or put in a new man to cope with the new problems that will surely arise, only time will tell. There are two weeks left—time enough for anything to happen.

It is open on Monday and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Fridays. Letter Charges False, Says Royce

Dear Editor:

In bringing the question of my recall from the office of Commissioner of Scholastic Activities before the Executive Council, the major issue was a series of letters written by a member of the staff attacking my character and ability. When I attempted to answer the charges in these letters, I was called out of order.

It now appears that administrative policy at Valley College permits a staff member to publicly attack the reputation of a student while allowing the student no opportunity to speak in his own defense. While I am allowed to register a complaint with President McNelis, and I am doing so, it is too late to prevent the damage these letters have done to my reputation and to my standing before the Executive Council.

It is my hope that in the forthcoming recall election the students will not be swayed by unfounded, unsupported statements made by a person who must have known that I would not be allowed to defend myself.

Sincerely,

Rodgers Featured At Coming Activity

Recording star Jimmie Rodgers will perform at an assembly next Thursday at 11 a.m. in the Men's Gym, according to Brett Cleaver, commissioner of student activities.

Rodgers, who won nation-wide fame with his record of "Honeycomb" has a new position with Dot records. In addition to making records, he is the artist and repertoire chief in the folk music department of the recording company.

As a man who always loved to sing, but never thought of a professional career, Rodgers first sang in public while serving in Korea with the U.S. Air Force. He and a group of friends formed the Rhythm Kings to entertain the troops in the surrounding area.

Upon discharge from the service, Rodgers was encouraged to sing in a night club in Nashville, Tennessee. The owners liked him so much he was given a contract to perform at the club.

A friend urged him to go to New York to audition for Hugo and Luigi, artist and repertoire chiefs with Roulette records. He took a tape of "Honeycomb" along as his audition. He no sooner got home when he was called back to record the now famous song. He became an overnight sensation.

Rodgers was born in Wasco, Washington, near the Oregon border. His mother was a piano teacher and instilled the love of music in him at an early age.

Rodgers majored in music at Vancouver Clark College in Washington. He now resides in Granada Hills with his wife Colleen, and their two children.

of original, often hitherto undiscovered, medieval lyric poems by various famous German poets.

The performance at Valley is free upon presentation of a student body card, or $1 for non-students and guests.

After his performance last year at UCLA, Wolfram was acclaimed as giving "the richest offering in folk music we have yet had the pleasure to hear. In two concerts before critical music listeners at UCLA, Wolfram brought to his hearers a new sense of lyric beauty, with the elevation of homely local dialect to a true art form."

Bild am Sonntag

An article by Conrad Scheuer in the German magazine, "Bild am Sonntag," said the following about Wolfram: "His name, his red beard and imposing stature singularly befit his profession as a medieval troubadour. If you close your eyes while listening to his songs, you will, with a little imagination, find yourself transported to some grand hall of an old medieval castle, sitting at a table surrounded by knights in shining armor."

Action's By-word for Clubs

Clubs at Valley College are not picking out slogans. They believe that action speak louder than words, and intend to practice what they preach. In the process they have attracted a great deal of attention, but they stress that there is enough room for everyone to be accommodated.

Regular conversation groups, an effort by the French Club, are progressing with good momentum. The groups meet on alternate Tuesdays and Thursdays at 11 a.m. in FL 102. The club has also scheduled a film on France Tuesday and will present Miss Susana Robbins, a Valley student, who will show slides and speak on her travels through France.

Retiring President Louis Stern will stay on as the French Club's IOC representative. All club members are grateful to Stern for the excellent job he has performed as president for three semesters.

The Hillel Council will meet today at the Community Center on Burbank Boulevard at 11 a.m. Highlighting today's meeting will be a talk by Ralph A. Levine, group work director for the Foundation for the Junior Blind and former youth director of Temple Beth Hillel. He will speak on the topic entitled "A Jew Laughs," an insight into Jewish humor. All students and club members are invited to attend.

Hillel has also planned Orientation Day, on which new and old members are given an explanation of what Hillel means, and its position as a national organization. This will take place next Thursday at 11 a.m.

"Talespins" is the winning title for Tau Alpha Epsilon and Les Savants new monthly publication. It was chosen because of the clever use of the club initials. Next Tuesday will be the last chance this semester for new members to be initiated. Those who were unable to attend the Oct. 9 initiation meeting should be in B 1 at 11 a.m.

TAE Les Savants is planning a musical program on Nov. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Choral Room of the Music Building. Refreshments will be served and everyone is invited.

A breakfast at the Burbank International House of Pancakes has been scheduled by the Coronets and Knights for Wednesday. The two service organizations are for the time working together on a holiday charity project at Sepulveda Veterans' Hospital.

Frosh Dance At 11 Today

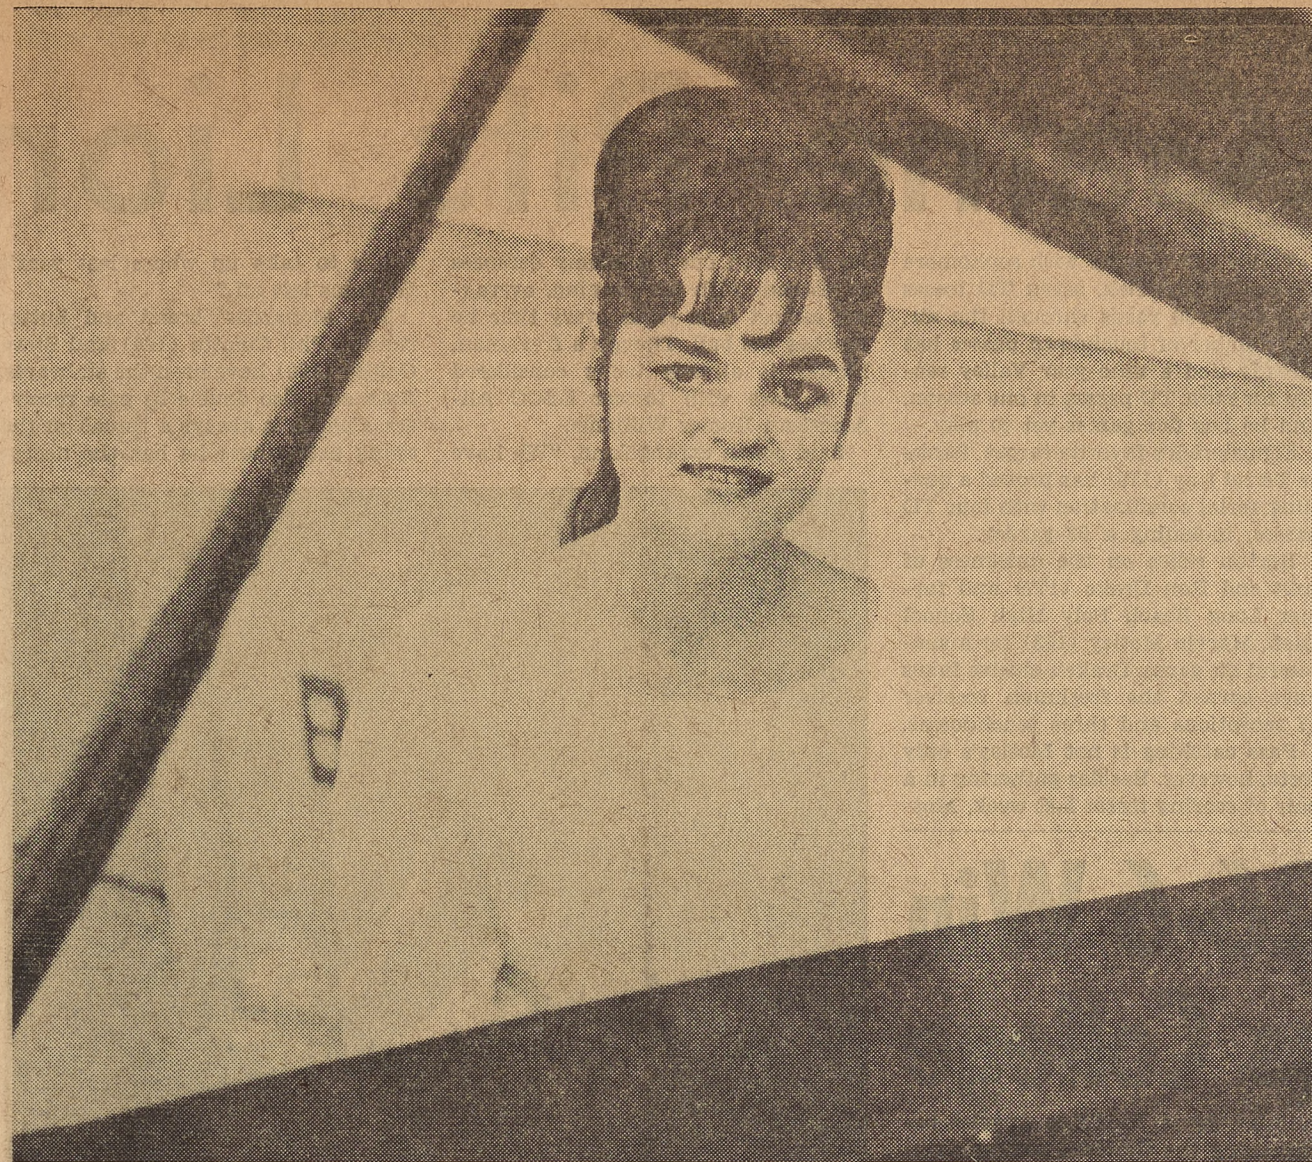

Valley's first freshman class sponsored dance takes place today at 11 a.m. in Monarch Square.

The "String Twisters" will prove to music to this, the first in a series of Freshman dances, according to John Newcombe, freshman class president.

As a special part of the program, the freshman members of the Valley College football team will be introduced.

The cheerleaders and songleaders will be on hand to add to the football spirit.

The freshman class is planning to make these dances a regular feature of the semester.

HOURS OF PRACTICE—Lisa Binney, whose dream of someday becoming a successful professional singer, is turning into a reality, accompanied herself on the piano during one of the many hours of practice needed to accomplish her goal. Miss Binney is a member of the Young Americans, the teenage folk song and dance group, but she has always wanted to be an operatic singer.

Valley Student Plans Music Career

By STEVE CHATON

Merely talking with Lisa Binney about her hopes and dreams of becoming an opera singer isn't convincing. When she starts singing, however, it's another story.

In her second year at Valley College, Miss Binney is using education as a stepping stone to a future in music. At the age of 18 she has combined her formal teachings with a practical education as a member of "The Young Americans," a group of some 50 teenagers touring the world as performing ambassadors of good will for the United States.

As the old adage goes, Lisa "was born with a song" but it is hardly far from the truth. Her mother will testify that "she sang from the time she opened her eyes" and it is best proved by the way Lisa talks with a melody.

Professional Performances

The professional stage drew Miss Binney at the age of 14 when she began performing with the "Silver Stars," an act comprised of several youngsters that staged shows in hospitals and homes for the aged.

Her amateur status was resumed in two presentations of North Hollywood High School in which she starred. Lisa took the major roles in the high school's showings of Carousel and Down in the Valley.

After singing popular music for most of her life, she decided that opera was the music she most enjoyed. Her music instructors agreed and her teaching began to be pointed at opera.

While most girls of her age pass away the hours listening to rock and roll, Lisa finds relaxation in sitting near her stereo and listening to a Puccini operetta.

Lisa's mother is from Italy and is a big help in teaching her the pronunciation of the difficult Italian operas. Besides her help in the language, Lisa considers her mother to be her best critic. "When others approach me and say, that was very nice, following a performance, I can always count on some constructive criticism from my mother. This has helped me tremendously."

Member of Madrigals

Lisa's love for singing is second only to her love for opera. "I love to sing anywhere. Anytime I perform it's exciting, no matter how many I perform to."

The Madrigal Singers at Valley have been a chance for Lisa to perform for the past two years and only a busy schedule this year has kept her from the group again.

While enjoying performing at school or the folk singing of the Young Americans, Miss Binney still prefers the operatic touch as "it is so

Women's Week Being Planned By Valley's AWS

The Associated Women Students of Valley College are getting everything in readiness for Women's Week, scheduled for the first, third and fourth of November. A trio of activities are planned for the three day event.

Heading the list of events is the Big and Little Sister Tea, designed to create a friendly atmosphere for the incoming freshmen. A fashion show and tea is on the agenda for Thursday of that week, in which Valley girls will model the latest in fashions from the local department stores.

Closing ceremonies of the week will be topped off by a dance on the occasion of Sadie Hawkins Day. There will also be a student body election to select a Miss Sadie Hawkins, among candidates sponsored by the various clubs.

Participants in Women's Week, and all interested girls are welcome, and may sign up for modeling, hosting, et cetera, in B 24.

The AWS sets as its goals the promotion of friendship, understanding, democracy and good will between students, faculty and community.

Ruby Zuver, coordinator of student activities, says that, "AWS represents every woman student on campus and works to promote any activity on campus in which women are involved. As an example of this, she cites the faculty-executive Koffee Klatch in which AWS students played an important part."

Sixteen Vie For Homecoming Title

A record number of 16 girls, sponsored by campus organizations, are running for the coveted title of Homecoming Queen—1964.

As of Tuesday afternoon 16 petitions had been taken from the dean of students' office for circulation on campus. Those who have turned in the petitions with the necessary 50 signatures are Sandy Dickson of the Makai Surfing Association, Heather Woodruff of the Motion Picture Club, Linda Grossboklin of the Italian Club, Pam Musk of the JFK Young Democrats, Claudia Hill of the International Club and Baiba Leenanis of the German Club.

If the 10 other petitions are turned in by tomorrow afternoon at 2, it will be a new record for Homecoming Queen contestants.

The other girls with petitions, which they are still circulating, are Sandra Sekac of the Valley Associated Business Students, Jacki Ray of the Newman Club, Gayle Lapask of the Women's Athletic Association; Osa Danam of the Valley Collegiate Players, Sandy Hawkins of the Monarchettes, Barbara Berkowitz of the Ski Club, Jill McDonald of the Lettermen's Club and Diana Bolton of the Sports Car Club.

After the election, which will take place on Nov. 2, 3 and 4, the tabulation will take place. This year, as in the recent past, IBM machines will be used.

At the Homecoming Dance on Nov. 6 in the Biltmore Hotel, the Queen will be crowned. On the following night the queen will be presented at the Valley football game against Santa Monica.

In the past outstanding campaigning, especially by the Sports Car Club, which sponsored last year's winner, Madeline Mack, has had much to do with determining the eventual winner. Campaigning begins Monday.

Scholarship To Be Given

For the second time, the "Pearl-Haggard-Ben Ami Memorial" scholarship of $100 will be awarded to a student who has secured an "A" in at least one academic English course this semester. General scholastic achievement will also be taken into account.

Dr. Aura-Lee Ageton says that applicants who have filed in the past need not file again. However, new applications must be filed before Oct. 30 at her office in the Administration Building. The scholarship will be awarded as soon after that as practical.

Benjamin B. Ben Ami established the scholarship in memory of his late wife, Pearl M. Haggard, former English teacher at Valley.

TAE-Les Savants were selected to administer the fund under the sponsorship of Dr. Ageton. The advisory board consists of Thomas G. McGuire, associate professor of English, David M. Brown, instructor in history and Jay R. Merson, instructor in French.

Do or Die Game Pits Lions vs. Vikes

By V. J. PALLOS
Assistant Sports Editor

Valley College's first place football team awaits possibly its highest hurdle of all toward a Metropolitan Conference crown, the nation's first ranking powerhouse, Long Beach City College.

If at any time in recent Monarch grid history there was an important game for Valley, it will come Saturday at 8 p.m. in Monarch Stadium.

All conference football teams will focus their attention on Valley's field, where an undisputed first-place team will arise.

'Must win' refers to both schools, as Long Beach and Valley are undefeated after two conference games.

The Vikings stunned host Bakersfield, 28-7, and rolled over El Camino, 47-22. Valley was likewise pulling a big upset over Cerritos, 7-6, and easing past East Los Angeles, 26-6.

Whereas many colleges key an offense around a small nucleus of players, the Vikings counter with an entire 11-man unit, and more to spare. "Dept I have," said head coach Jim Strangeland. "This is undoubtedly the finest team I have ever coached."

Calling signals for the Vikes will be freshman Greg Barton, "an amazingly cool ball-handler under fire," commented Strangeland. In Barton's first four games this season he passed 46 times successfully, good for 489 yards, five touchdowns, and a .555 completion average.

Valley will counter with sophomore Dudley Schusterick, seven TD tosses and over 500 yards through the air. His number of touchdown passes has already tied a nine-year Valley record for most TD passes in one season, and he has five games yet to play.

Schusterick's favorite target, flanker Terrel Ray (170) has proved a dazzling aerial combination with four TD passes, including a 93-yarder.

Barton relies on the quickness of split end Ron Drake (177) and former Long Beach Poly High School flash, Marvin Motley (163) for a successful air game, Drake's elusive fakes have earned the freshman receiver 17 receptions and three touchdowns.

Pass catching is not Motley's only forte, however. Besides gathering in a pair of scoring tosses last week, Motley has been cutting enemy defenses to shreds with his running, averaging almost nine yards every time he touches the ball. Though a freshman, Motley is already being considered in a class with former LBCC All-American Homer Williams.

Said coach Strangeland, "We have

The Monarchs' bread and butter runners, Phil Culotta (185) and Steve Oakley (190) have been the stalwarts. Both can also double as pass receivers. Culotta is always a threat on the swing pass where he has the necessary speed for long break-aways. His longest gain from scrimmage was a 72-yard TD run against the Huskies.

Tackle to tackle, Long Beach averages 232 pounds, opposed to Valley's 220. Vikings Jim Homan (227) and Mike Westphal (247) are the big men, along with 240-pound guard Jack Frost.

Tackles Mike Scarpace (235) and Ron Helman (235) supply the local opposition with guards James Glavey (230) and Jim Bradley (180). Center is 220 pound Mike Haben.

According to coach Strangeland, Valley may be in for a rough passing night. Enemy quarterbacks have completed less than 40 per cent passing thanks to the work of Viking linebackers and defensive secondary.

The Lions are developing a sharp defense of their own with linebackers Tom Thompson (190) and John Shelton (180), and Phil Mundy (175) and Harold Lurtsema (158) two of the deep men. Shelton intercepted two passes in the last game, Lurtsema and Mundy one each.

"One thing's for sure about Saturday night," said coach George Ker, "one team will be in first place. About the ball game, we played poorly at East Los Angeles, but the team will definitely be up for the contest."

Monarchs Breeze to 26-6 Win Over East Los Angeles College

By STEVE CHATON
Sports Editor

Valley's 26-6 win over East Los Angeles last Friday wasn't the most impressive nor was it the most overpowering game this year, but it did serve its purpose, and the Monarch win streak has advanced to three.

For the first time since 1959, Valley has reached the three win platform and now is co-owner of the Metropolitan Conference lead with Long Beach.

"It was nice to win," said Coach George Ker, "and is even nicer to be 3-1, but we didn't play our best game. We were bad, but we were lucky that East Los Angeles was worse."

Ker more than summarized Valley's performance as they were far from outstanding. On the scoreboard the Monarchs reigned supreme, but in the final statistics, the story was told. Valley lost possession six times on errors—four fumbles and two interceptions.

Once again quarterback Dudley Schusterick proved to be the margin of victory as East Los Angeles fell victim to two long bombs from Schusterick to Terrel Ray.

The first of the long aeriels broke the scoring barrier with 13:25 left in the second quarter. Ray shot down the left sideline, pulled the ball away from two Huskie defenders and trotted the remaining 10 yards into the end zone.

Geoff Duncan, who last week converted perfectly to give the Monarchs a one point win, missed the extra point kick and Valley held a 6-0 lead.

East Los Angeles took the following kickoff and marched into Valley territory, but stalled the drive when they were detected for holding. The Huskies punted to Valley's 27-yard line and halfback Phil Culotta stepped into the limelight. After a seven-yard gain on the first play, Culotta followed a key block by Mike Scarpace around right end and scampered 72 yards for the touchdown. Duncan made good on the kick, and Valley led 13-0 with 9:03 remaining in the half.

The Huskies finally managed to stage a touchdown drive after two exchanges of punts. East LA started from its own 46-yard line and climaxed the drive with Art Arzate passing to Gary Taylor for 6 yards and 6 points.

After the halftime break Culotta returned a Huskie punt to the East Los Angeles 20 and set the stage for another Valley score. Five plays and 15 yards later, Schusterick shot around left end for the TD. Duncan's kick was blocked, but the Lions led 19-6.

With little or no hope left in its

The last Valley College team to win the Metropolitan Conference Football Championship, the 1955 Monarch gridders, will hold its first reunion next year, according to coach Al Hunt, the head coach of the '55 champs.

Anyone who was connected with the team should contact coach Hunt in the PE department for details about the reunion.

Splashers Lose To Vikings, 17-7

The heavily favored Long Beach poloists swam into a stubborn Valley defense last Tuesday, but defeated the improving Monarch splashers 17-7.

Going into the Long Beach encounter, Valley coach Ray Folloso considered the Vikings as the team to beat in the Metro Conference, but he has since revised his prediction, saying, "Cerritos now looks like the top team in the conference."

The Monarchs fell behind 3-1 in the first period as the Vikings outscored the Lions in every period except the third, as the local netted two goals to the Vikings one.

Valley's scoring attack was spread out among six men as only Kurt Krueger could manage more than one goal.

After the Long Beach game, coach Folloso said, "The men are starting to come along and are playing above expectations."

Coach Folloso's enthusiasm might be discouraged somewhat this week as his poloists met El Camino last Tuesday and are scheduled to meet the powerful Bakersfield splashers tomorrow.

Lionettes Travel to Fullerton; Defeat PCC Hoopsters Twice

"No news is good news," that's what Miss Elaine Timmerman, coach of the women's basketball team had to say after looking over the girls in practice Monday.

But apparently that isn't the case as the Monarch women played host to Pasadena City College last Wednesday and the first team defeated the Lancers 56-18.

Yesterday Miss Timmerman's team traveled to Harbor College to meet the Harboettes.

Racing the Lions to its victory were forward Liz Lambrecht, who bucketed 15 points and forward Mary Giannotti, who tallied 14.

"In the Pasadena game, the girls played better than I've never seen them play before," said coach Timmerman. "They hit 40 per cent of their shots which is excellent for a women's basketball team."

In the first period Valley led Pasadena, 17-6, and then 30-12 at half-time. In the third stanza, the Lions didn't allow the Lancers to score a single point.

The second team also defeated Pasadena, 22-17, with guard Carol Heaston leading the field throwing in seven points.

Next Wednesday at 8 p.m., the Monarchs travel to Fullerton.

running game, East Los Angeles began using the shotgun. Arzate started passing and didn't stop until he had attempted 27 straight.

In the middle of Arzate's streak, Schusterick again found Ray in the open and teamed for a 66-yard touchdown play. Culotta attempted the extra point and parted the uprights for the point. Valley 26, ELA 6.

The Huskies began their final threat late in the fourth quarter when they capitalized on a Valley fumble and marched 19 yards down to the Lion 3. John Shelton took matters into his own hands and intercepted a Huskie pass and returned the ball back to the line of scrimmage.

Ker had nothing but praise for Shelton's play on defense as the 5 foot 4 inch linebacker intercepted two passes during the evening. Also, Ker praised the defense of Phil Mundy and Tom Tompson.

The ball game ended on a happy note for the Monarchs when Mundy intercepted another Huskie pass and returned it to the ELA 8 yard line.

Runs to Keep in Shape But . . .

Cheever Surprise in Distances

By DAN EHRLICH

No one is more happy or surprised than cross country coach Charlie Mann on the improvement of his squad has shown to date. Terry Cheever, one of the team's two returning lettermen, is largely responsible for the harriers' success.

Cheever, like many of his teammates, loves to run. Every day he can be seen romping through trails of North Hollywood Park during the practice sessions. When not at the park, he will run for an hour and a half on Valley's track or any other place he can find to stretch out his legs.

Although Cheever has performed admirably from the first time he donned cross country shoes, he admits that his real love lies in track competition. "I use cross country as a means of conditioning myself for future cinder meets," he said.

The two-mile relay was Cheever's strong point on the Monarch track team last season. He ran his half-mile leg of this race in 1:57.5. Not content with just one event, Cheever also ran the 440, 880, mile and two-mile runs. George Ker, Valley track coach, considers him a very promising man in the 880 for the coming season. "He has good speed and lots of endurance, which is a winning combination in this race," Ker said.

This year in cross country competition, Cheever ran his best race by coming in first against Bakersfield during a dual meet. He posted a time of 21:35 for the distance.

Prior to attending Valley, this 19-year-old 6-footer lettered for three years in cross country and track at neighboring Grant High School. When asked which he liked better, high school or college competition, Cheever answered, "The main thing that sets high school and collegiate running apart is the wider and more diversified field of competition. The course is longer in college, which makes it tougher, but the rewards are equally great."

Cheever, basically a very modest person, doesn't pay much attention to the times he posts in competition. "I race because I like it and I like to win. That's all I care about when I run," he said.

Upon leaving Valley, Cheever hopes to continue running, this time at the University of Hawaii. He is also very active in summer AAU track competition.

What does this track man do after running five miles in practice? Is he an exhausted figure relaxing before a television set? This is not true in Cheever's case. After practice he can be found working at his second love, drag racing.

ONE THAT DIDN'T GET AWAY—Valley's flanker Terrel Ray (in white) out jumps an East Los Angeles defender to grab a 45 yard pass from Dudley Schusterick and race into the end zone for the score. This was only one of two touchdown passes caught by Ray. The other was from Schusterick again for 66 yards.

Harriers Compete In Mt. SAC Race

By BARRY GOLDMAN

On a three and a half mile course at North Hollywood Park, coach Charlie Mann's first year cross country man Tony Borio ran a time of 18:09.5 to finish ahead of the field against Long Beach City College last Friday.

"Very outstanding performance by Borio," said Coach Mann. "It was a big surprise, because the Vikings weren't expecting it."

The Monarchs lost by the final score of 20-41, as they managed to place seventh, tenth, eleventh and twelfth against the Vikes.

In seventh John Thelen was clocked in 18:44, while Terry Cheever, Martin U'Ren and Steve Shepherd ran times of 19:10, 19:34 and 20:05. Long Beach finished 2-3-4-5 against Valley as its top men, Clement and Cortez, finished 20 seconds behind Borio. Unzueta and Wilson tied for fourth in 18:37.

"Running the North Hollywood course for the first time and setting the course record was amazing. Borio ranks along with another great Lion trackman, Dick Krenzer. Krenzer, who attended Valley two years ago and was Athlete of the Year, is currently attending the University of Southern California," commented Mann.

Krenzer was the last man to finish first against the Vikings. In 1962 he ran the North Hollywood course in 15:53. At that time the course was a three-mile run.

Tomorrow afternoon the Monarchs travel to Mt. San Antonio College to compete in the annual Mt. SAC Invitational Cross Country Meet.

At the Mt. SAC Invitational last season the winner was Citrus College of San Bernardino with a total of 102 points.

This year all the cross country squads from the Metropolitan, Western States, Eastern, South and San Diego conferences will be competing in this meet with the possible exception of Bakersfield, who sometimes skips the Invitational due to transportation problems. Approximately 30 teams will be featured.

Bruins Leading 'Mural Gridders

With only four games remaining, the Bruins hold a two game lead in the intramural program of free-pass football.

Following the undefeated Bruins in the standings is the Kelleys' who scored their fourth triumph last Thursday, as they upended the third place Huskies, 33-21.

The league's high scorer, Terry Scott, was held to seven points by the 49ers, but his Bruin teammates picked up the scoring slack, rolling to their sixth straight victory, 39-6.

In the only other game played last Thursday, the fifth place Rams upset the Cousins in a seesaw battle, 32-28.
